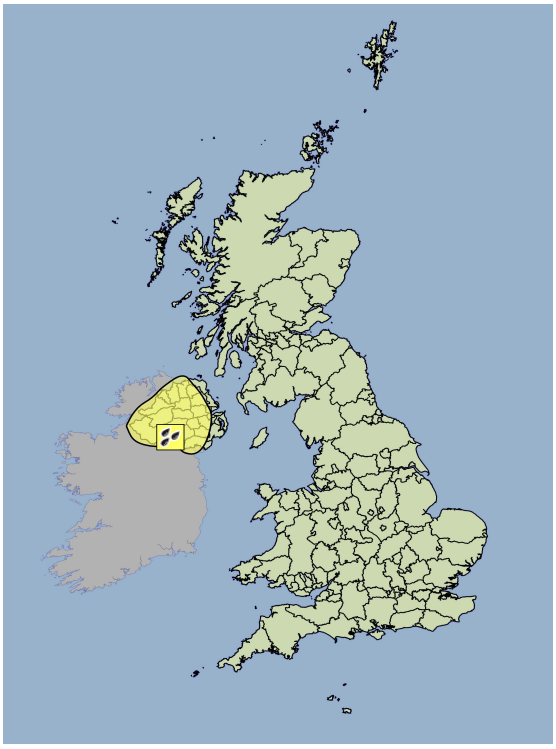
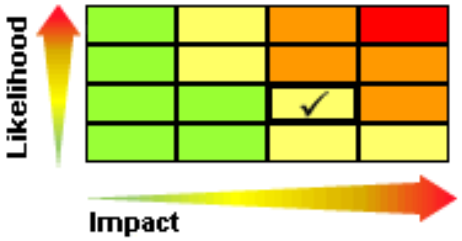
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
As temperatures rise this afternoon, the warmth will trigger showers which will quickly become heavy and thundery. Torrential downpours could bring localised accumulations of 10-20 mm of rain within an hour. As is common in such situations, not everywhere will catch the heaviest of the showers, and some places may well escape altogether.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 14:00 on Tue, 23rd Jul 2013 until 22:00 on Tue, 23rd Jul 2013

Heavy thundery showers will develop across Northern Ireland this afternoon and last into the evening. Some of the showers will be very heavy with torrential downpours, especially in central and western areas. The public should be aware of the risk of localised disruption to travel due to surface water flooding.

The showers will turn less heavy later in the evening before dying out tonight.
